

3. offer students extensive access to original research and other primary sources of knowledge.

4. emphasize the process of learning and the development of critical thinking skills.

information.

Courses receiving "honors credit" at Florida Atlantic University also differ qualitatively from other courses that may address similar topics. Honors courses should adhere to at least six of the

9. provide opportunities for publication or the public presentation of student work in formats where it may be reviewed and evaluated by other scholars.